"KING OF THE DUDES."

Mr. E. Berry Wall's Withdrawal From Public Gaze.

A Young Prince Prodigal's Financial Embarrassment—The Follies of a Generous-Hearted Man—Wall's Extensive and Varied Wardrobe.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.
New York, September 5.—Club men about town are just now discussing the financial affairs of the "King of the Dudes," Mr. E. Berry Wall. For some time past the young man has been withdrawn from public gaze, and since the beginning of August has remained in comparative seclusion at Saratoga. Since his retirement he has transferred his running horses, with which he has had some little success, to the Franksen stable, under the colors of which they will hereafter run. While Wall has been considered as rather embarrassed for some time, it was not until within a day or two, when a check of his for $25 was allowed to go to protest, that the actual state of his affairs was revealed. His friends said yesterday that his follies were only those of a generous-hearted man, unaccustomed to take charge of large sums of money; he was all right and would be taken care of by his family without fail. Further than this they declined to speak of his financial embarrassments. Mr. Wall is the grandson of Wm. Wall, who was the founder of the great carriage works in Williamsburg, the business of which has been converted by his sons under the title of Wm. Wall's Sons. One of these, Charles Wall, was the father of the young prince prodigal. Wall was known among his associates, as well as the general public, as "King of the Dudes," and his embarrassment will bring grief to the hearts of many tailors, boot makers, hatters, and other dealers in articles that go to make the outfit of a particularly gorgeous swell. Wall was popularly supposed to possess a suit of clothes for every day in the year, and to own no less than 500 pairs of trousers. When he traveled he carried more trunks than a prima donna. He was never noted for quiet colors or patterns in the matter of his dress, and as a general thing, his apparel was such as to attract attention wherever he went. He led the fashion among the young men of his set, and when Berry Wall appeared in a scarlet overcoat, striped vest with brass buttons, a collar that raised his ears, a monocle, and patent-leather shoes with yellow uppers, the front of the Brunswick at once resembled a particularly gorgeous swell. THE ROCK SPRINGS RIOT.

Everything Quiet at the Scene of the Mongolian Massacre.
Rock Springs, W. T., September 5.—Everything is quiet to-day and strict measures have been taken to put a stop to all carousals. It is reported that less than one-third of the dead have been found, as there are numbers still buried in the smoking ruins of Chinatown. Numbers of scared Chinamen are arriving at points east and west. They are being shipped to Evanston by the company. The bodies have all along the road have refused to work and are asking to be shipped to Evanston. At Green River the Chinamen have been told that they will be shipped West to-morrow.

The Fight-Tables Must Go.
CHICAGO, September 5.—Reports received here from Rock Springs place the number of the dead at fifteen. The Union Pacific is undetermined what to do, as they employ large numbers of Chinese, all of whom are in a panicky condition. The company places the responsibility of the hiring of the Chinamen on the contractors, Redwirth and Bequin. As yet no troops have been ordered to the scene of the fight. It is now reported that the trouble originated in a fight between four Chinese and two miners, who fought with picks. There is a general sentiment all along the road that the Chinese must go.

Troops Ordered Out.
CHICAGO, September 5.—Acting on the demand of the Governor of Wyoming, Gen. Schofield was ordered yesterday to send two companies of troops to the scene to keep open the mail routes.

FLORENCE AT HOME.

The Actor Chats About the Stage and His Own Career.

Secrecy of Skillful Actors—No Modern Dramatic School—What He Will Do This Season—Mme. Janish and Her Troubles—"Anselma" to be Produced.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

New York, September 5.—A diminutive Skye terrier barked a rather ambiguous welcome to a visitor who entered Wm. J. Florence's sitting room at the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday. "Quiet, Gypsy," said the comedian and Gypsy quieted down.

So many people know Mr. Florence personally that a description of him in the quiet of his home, for such his home at Fifth avenue actually is, may seem a trifle superfluous. Clean-shaven, full faced, his usual expression of frank cordiality and genial good-fellowship too often causes one to forget the grace of movement, quickness and aptness of gesture and dignified carriage of the head which bespeak him the romantic actor as well as the comedian. "My fancy hard work," he said as he quietly puffed his cigar, "has had the most to do with my success—hard and a settled conviction that I had to see things as they are, and not as I would like them to be. It is one of the infinite mysteries of the universe to me how many of the actors I see in my own companies as well as in others have ever drifted onto the stage. What led them to think they had the makings of actors in them, what spoiled good handworking clerks or shopmen and made, somehow, still handworking actors out of them? I don't know where our actors are coming from," said Florence gloomily. "The combination and traveling companies prevent the stage being a school any longer, and there is no other. I'm as much to blame as any one, I suppose, for I used to play one piece through a whole season, and how could I learn his business? I can't come true and I shall have a little theater in New York where I can have constant change of bill, and run one comedy after another with little farces of the old 'Madison Mortis' type."

RECENT REVENUE MADE of recent bankruptcy of Mrs. Swanborough, manager of the Strand Theater, Mr. Florence told me the sad story of the modern Mrs. Malaprop. One object was to this effect: He called to see her one day and Mrs. Swanborough, who, he said, "Oh, dear Florence, you should have been here last week. My dear Clark had a bet with me and we had both of us bet on the result of the election with a little man—a minister." "A minister?" queried Florence. "Not Mr. Beecher, was it?" "No, his name was the Rev. Mr. Johnson, and every one seemed to know him." "Somewhat gratified as to what celebrated clergyman the Rev. Mr. Johnson might be, Florence asked J. S. Clark the next time he saw him. "The Rev. Mr. Johnson," queried Clark. "Oh, the old lady means Beverly Johnson—our Minister to England." The talk went back to his own characters and work and Florence said that few characters gave him greater pleasure to play than Oberon in "No Thoroughfare." "It's no subtle," said he, "there is so much below the surface that it took me a good six months of study to get beneath the character as it was, and now it is a fine internal pleasure for me to play it." He referred with pious awe to the mass of manuscript plays he had waded through lately. "Not one of them would do," said he, "and I shall have to trust to old favorites for this season."

Janish Will Produce "Anselma."

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch. New York, September 5.—Mme. Janish, becomingly attired, and with an anxious expression on her face, listened attentively to the proceedings before Judge Van Vorst yesterday, on the motion to continue the injunction secured by Agnes Ethel, restraining her from producing the play, "Anselma," at the Madison Square Theater. Mme. Janish was surrounded by members of her company. They, too, were intensely interested in the arguments. General Wingate, representing Agnes Ethel, told how in 71 his client, then a rising young actress, visited Paris and perfected an arrangement with Victorien Sardou to write the play now in dispute for her. The terms of contract gave her the right to translate the play and reduce it to French, and in Australia, when it would come, forever, her sole property. Mme. Janish said the author $3,000 in cash. Much time was spent in studying the place under Sardou's instructions. Mme. Janish then returned to America, Sardou holding the right to produce the play in France and Europe. Three months after it was done here a September, 1872, the play was presented at the Madison Square Theater by Mme. Janish under the title of "Anselma." Later Sardou placed it on the cards in France, calling it "Andromeda." Mme. Janish reduced the play to French, and it was widely circulated. Mme. Janish declares that his act was unauthorized by her and is a violation of proprietary right. When Mme. Janish became Mrs. Tracy she left the stage, but received royalties for the production of "Anselma" in Chicago and San Francisco. She was arrested by the Madison Square manager who was stated they were willing to give a reasonable bond to indemnify the plaintiff. Counsel declared that when the play was produced in French it was dedicated to the public and became public property. Judge Van Vorst adjourned his case in order to allow counsel for Mme. Janish to consult the law on the subject. In the meantime permission is granted to Mme. Janish to produce the play after giving a bond for $3,000 to indemnify the plaintiff. Janish says she will produce "Anselma" Monday night at the Madison Square Theater.

AN ALDERMAN WHIPPED.

Killed in a Quarry—After the Train Robbers—Missouri Matters.

St. Joseph, September 5.—Alderman Ewald had been imbibed freely yesterday and attempted to take liberties with Mrs. Morris, a young married lady. The husband resented the insult and a fight ensued. The alderman was badly whipped and a public apology is demanded of him. Morris was thrown from a horse at the Exposition grounds and received fatal injuries.

BIRMINGHAM, September 5.—James Kelly, a quarryman, was killed by a premature blast at Syonite.

JERSEY CITY, September 5.—The governor has issued a proclamation offering a reward of $1,000 for the arrest of each man participating in the Blue Springs train robbery. The Chicago and Alton Railroad Company offers a reward of $4,000. John O'Brien and John Brennan have been arrested at Lexington on suspicion, and William Mullano, a cookhouse man, was arrested at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, September 5.—The Knights of Labor held a secret meeting last night. It is rumored that they will begin a strike for the week of September 10. The union in the ecclesiastical trial of Rev. H. D. Jardine, of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, closed last evening and adjournment was taken for a week.

LIVERPOOL, September 5.—S. H. Wilcox, dry goods merchant, has failed. The establishment has been closed by creditors.

PORTLAND, September 5.—During a quarrel last night Antonio Powers was fatally stabbed by Joseph Hooper. Both men had been drinking heavily.

DENVER, September 5.—The Jefferson County Fair closed last evening. There was a large attendance during the day.

HOLLAND'S "MONSTER."

The Launching of the Torpedo Boat
at Ft. Lafayette.

The Spindle-Shaped Vessel Floats as Gracefully as a Swan—The Sudden
Sinking of the Craft.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

New York, September 5.—Three o'clock yesterday afternoon was the hour fixed for the launching of the torpedo boat at Fort Lafayette. A few invited guests were present, including the inventor, J. T. Holland, and Lieutenant Zaleski. The foundations of the structure which had been prepared for the launch, that the high winds and waves of Thursday had damaged, were thought to have been made firm over night, so that everybody was sanguine of complete success.

Thursday a "wink" of the storm, the hollow roar of the sea with stones and iron, roared at the base of the "ways" used for getting the boat off, but the action of the water worked it out of position and made necessary the substitution of piles. These piles were very hard to place securely, owing to the exceedingly slippery flint foundation on which they rested. Braces and buttresses of all sorts were used and every sign indicated a safe superstructure. The torpedo boat weighs twenty-eight tons, but it was calculated that the ways rested on a foundation whose security had been clearly proved, and therefore no fears were entertained of disaster from that source.

To the head end of the vessel was attached a stout rope, controlled by the hands of a schooner that had been hired to anchor off Fort Lafayette, and, springing to the fort, this rope had taken the water. The torpedo boat's tail faced the sea, and a large rope tied to her head was made fast to a "jack" at the fort. This rope had the craft fast, and it was designed by slowly releasing it from the jack to permit her to move.

At 3:30 o'clock Lieutenant Zaleski ordered all hands to get on the vessel. The vessel was ready in a few minutes more time, and it was not until 3:45 p. m. that a commanding "Let her go," was given by Lieutenant Zaleski.

The vessel moved rapidly from her moorings to the sea. Suddenly her movement increased, and she began a croaking noise and the breathing of timbers was heard slightly, tilted, and then righting, she rapidly floated as gracefully as a swan. Everybody concerned was in an ecstasy of delight, and inventor Holland so far forgot his resolution to conceal his identity as to exclaim, "She's a go, as sure as my name is Holland." But delight soon changed into disappointment. "The 'Monster' was surely sinking, and in exactly four and a half minutes from the time the boat struck the water she had disappeared from sight. Boats, manned by soldiers and laborers, were sent quickly to the spot where the vessel had gone down, and in a few minutes Lieutenant Zaleski called out that he could touch the hull of the vessel, and that it was about one hundred feet northwest of Fort Lafayette, and will be marked by buoys and lights until the work of raising it is completed.

Until this is accomplished there will be more or less danger to passing vessels, whose pilots should be on the lookout for the sunken craft. Lieutenant Zaleski, Dr. Elson and Mr. Holland declared that the torpedo boat gave every evidence of success. She floated well and properly and did not, as many contended would be the result, fall over on her beam ends, but MOVED WITH GRACE AND EASE until carried down by the water when filled in from a hole in the bottom. "The fellow who held the rope at the jack let go too quickly. The sea end of the foundation could not stand the violent strain upon it, caused by the velocity the boat's movement and weight, so that the ways broke and the vessel, being thrown on one side, the top of a pile punched a hole in her bottom," said Dr. Holland. Some outsiders believe that the diving apparatus for sinking the craft below the surface became opened, but Marine Architect Davies, Lieutenant Holland and others do not admit this as possible. The vessel will be raised by Monday and another test will probably be made within a week.

THE CIVIL COURTS.

Creditors of the Dollar Store Seek to Remove Assignee Bohle.

Petition Filed To-Day Charging Fraud,
Collusion and Incompetency—Mrs.
Marie Whitman's Brief Honeymoon
—Features of New Litigation.

A petition or motion for the removal of Assignee Bohle of the Dollar Store was filed to-day in the Circuit Court. Jones & Delano, Robertson & Kleibacker and Joseph A. Gerns represent the following creditors in the matter: Horace Partridge & Co., S. Golds, Callinold Brush Company, S. M. Hermann, Thomson, Langdon & Co., Enterprise Manufacturing Company, C. M. Draper, Nathaniel Grant & Co., Charles J. Sheard & Co., J. G. Webster & Co., the White Mountain Press Company, the Maine Manufacturing, Fred Kahn and F. Winter.

The creditors allege that the assignee, in violation of the trust, confided to him, improperly and fraudulently selected the first appraisers who failed to inventory the entire stock and fraudulently inventoried and appraised the assets at a figure less than one-half the value. The stock was appraised by them at $1,425, whereas a second appraisal by other parties showed the value of the goods to be $2,500 and at public sale the stock brought $3,100.

The creditors also allege that the assignee failed to protect the leasehold interest of the store by which the large stock of office, store and business fixtures were greatly decreased in value on account of the necessity of immediate removal, and outside parties were enabled to make disparaging announcements at the time of the sale.

The creditors allege that the assignee privately and publicly announced to various parties and to the appraisers last night, that the whole of the stock was not worth $15,000, thereby endeavoring to depreciate the value of the bids, greatly to the detriment of the creditors of the estate.

The creditors further allege that the assignee is incompetent to manage the estate for the best interest of the parties concerned, and the Court of its own motion and without first appointment of the creditors further state that when the second appraisers entered upon their duties the assignee interfered with them and prevented them from inventorying the assets at the market value, and endeavoring to make them return estimates far below the real value.

The creditors in conclusion allege that the assignee interfered with them and prevented them from inventorying the assets at the market value, and endeavoring to make them return estimates far below the real value.

The creditors in conclusion allege that the assignee interfered with them and prevented them from inventorying the assets at the market value, and endeavoring to make them return estimates far below the real value.

the property at a price below its value. The creditors ask the court to remove the assignee and appoint a competent and faithful person to protect their interests.

Talked About Her Relatives.

A petition for divorce was filed this morning in the Circuit Court in behalf of Mrs. Marie Whitman. She states that she was married to John T. Whitman on the 9th of July and they separated before the honeymoon was fairly over. Mrs. Whitman alleges that she faithfully performed her duties as a wife and did everything in her power to make her husband happy and comfortable. She states, however, that he exerted himself in the contrary direction, and rendered her condition intolerable.

She charges him with abusive conduct and with threatening to take her life. Under the influence of liquor he was wont to accuse her of improper intimacies and said things about her which caused her deep mortification and shame.

Mrs. Whitman further alleges that her husband wounded her feelings by talking disrespectfully of her relatives. He also threatened to put and destroy her clothes and altogether conducted himself in such a manner as to cause her to bitterly resent the union, and she determined to seek relief at the hands of the court. She asks for restoration of her maiden name, Marie Mittelberger.

Suit Against Sureties.

Joseph Marks filed suit to-day in the Circuit Court against Peter A. Casey and Samuel Simmons asking for judgment in the sum of $5,750. The parties named were sureties on an appeal bond given by James Hardy in a case taken up to the Supreme Court. The judgment was in favor of Mr. Marks, and he also obtained it at the hands of the court. She asks for restoration of her maiden name, Marie Mittelberger.

Suit for Services.

George W. Prescott has filed suit in the Circuit Court against the Texas and St. Louis Railroad Company to recover $2,100, the balance alleged to be due him on a salary of $2,000 per annum as a superintendent of motive power and machinery.

Expelled Downward Account.

Boston, September 4.—At a special meeting of the Bowdoin Square Baptist Church held last evening, Mr. Frederick J. Taber, upon the recommendation of the Prudential Committee of the church, was expelled by unanimous vote. This action is said to be for reasons largely independent of his recent action in causing the arrest of Mrs. Taber on a charge of adultery with Mrs. Taber.
